CENTOPASSI

Centopassi is the winemaking entity of the Libera Terra co-operatives that cultivate the lands seized from the mafia in Sicily.

The vineyards are located in the Upper Belice Corleonese, a beautiful region, particularly suited for high-quality production.

Broad and pure landscapes, with limestone peaks sticking out of highlands located at a very high average altitude, characterize this corner of the Mediterranean region, ideal for vine growing. Temperature changes, winds, soil composition, the symbiosis achieved with our selected vineyards lead to ideal conditions, so far from most stereotypes attached to Sicilian wine.

The wines display the characteristics of each vineyard, soil, and grape varieties that enhance their features.

Here elegance prevails, freshness is everywhere, wine drinkability is always ensured thanks to painstaking care for the vineyards and to processes that emphasize the expression of the grapes.

GIATO PROJECT

Giato is the name of the old district that surrounded amazing Greek theatre located on the top of Mount Jato. This place overlooks Jato Valley, Belice upland and the most important core of the Centopassi vineyards.

The peak of Mount Jato is on 850 meters on sea level. This allowed, in the ancient time, to have a highly strategic position and to supervise, from one side, the crossing point to access in Conca d'Oro (Horn of Plenty) and Panormos's (old name of Palermo) Phoenician-Punic emporium and, from the other side, the Belice River Valley through which it was possible to reach Selinunte, ancient Greek colony, and the Sicilian South coast. This area was inhabited ever since the beginning of the first millennia before Christ by the ancient populations that settled on the islands as the Elymians-Sican. In this place, since the 300 before Christ, the Greek village of Jaitas has blossomed and lived its most flourishing period.

Giato wines come from some of our best Sicilian grapes. They represent the highest point of the Centopassi blend's excellence project aimed at valorizing traditional and typical vineyards of Western Sicily.
